Purpose

Darjo Community Alliance ("Darjo", "we", "our", "us") is committed to protecting the privacy, dignity, confidentiality, and rights of the people we support, their families, representatives, employees, contractors, partners, and stakeholders.

This Privacy Policy explains how we collect, use, store, protect, disclose, and manage personal information and sensitive information in accordance with:

- Privacy Act 1988 (Cth)
- Australian Privacy Principles (APPs)
- Privacy and Other Legislation Amendment Act 2024 (Cth)
- Applicable aged care, health, disability and community services legislation

This policy applies to information collected through:

- our website;
- online enquiry, referral and intake forms;
- service delivery activities;
- assessments and care planning processes;
- community and aged care programs;
- consultations and meetings;
- telephone, email and written correspondence;
- authorised representatives and referral partners.

Who We Are

Darjo Community Alliance provides services including:

- aged care support services;
- care coordination;

- community support services;
- service navigation and referrals;
- compliance and advisory services;
- quality and governance support.

To provide these services effectively and safely, we may collect personal information and sensitive information about individuals receiving, seeking, or supporting services.

The Information We Collect

Personal Information

We may collect personal information including:

- full name and preferred name;
- date of birth;
- residential and postal addresses;
- telephone numbers;
- email addresses;
- emergency contact details;
- next of kin details;
- representative or guardian details;
- government identifiers where authorised by law;
- referral information;
- service records;
- communication preferences;
- feedback and complaint information.

We only collect information that is reasonably necessary for our functions and activities.

Sensitive Information

Where necessary for service delivery, we may collect sensitive information including:

- health information;
- medical history;
- disability information;
- clinical assessments;
- mobility or support requirements;
- cognitive information;
- mental health information;
- cultural, linguistic and spiritual preferences;
- safeguarding and risk information;
- care planning information;
- social and wellbeing information;
- genetic information;
- genomic information;
- hereditary health information where relevant to care delivery.

Sensitive information is only collected where:

- consent has been provided;
- collection is required or authorised by law;
- collection is necessary to lessen or prevent a serious threat to life, health or safety; or
- another lawful exception applies.

How We Collect Information

We collect information directly from individuals wherever possible through:

- online forms;
- intake and assessment processes;
- service agreements;
- meetings and consultations;
- care planning activities;
- telephone discussions;
- emails and written communications.

We may also collect information from:

- family members;
- carers;
- guardians;
- health professionals;
- hospitals;
- aged care providers;
- government agencies;
- authorised representatives;
- referral organisations.

Where information is collected from a third party, we will take reasonable steps to ensure the individual is aware of the collection unless an exemption applies under privacy law.

Why We Collect Information

We collect and use personal information to:

- respond to enquiries;
- assess eligibility for services;
- deliver services and supports;
- coordinate care and referrals;
- develop, review and monitor care plans;
- promote safety and wellbeing;
- communicate with individuals and representatives;
- manage complaints and feedback;
- undertake quality improvement activities;
- meet contractual obligations;
- comply with legal and regulatory requirements;
- satisfy government reporting obligations;
- support organisational governance and risk management.

If information is not provided, we may be unable to provide services safely, effectively or lawfully.

Consent

Darjo seeks consent in a manner that is:

- voluntary;
- informed;
- current;
- specific; and
- unambiguous.

Before collecting sensitive information, we will explain:

- what information is being collected;
- why the information is required;
- how it will be used;
- who it may be shared with; and
- the consequences of not providing the information.

Consent may be obtained through:

- signed documentation;
- electronic acknowledgement;
- recorded verbal consent;
- online submissions.

Darjo does not rely on pre-ticked boxes, bundled consent arrangements, or misleading consent practices.

Individuals may withdraw consent at any time unless we are legally required to retain or use the information.

Automated Decision-Making and Artificial Intelligence

Darjo may use technology, data analytics tools, automated processing systems, artificial intelligence technologies, or computer programs to assist with operational, governance, service delivery, quality assurance, risk management, and care coordination activities.

These systems may assist in:

- identifying support needs;
- monitoring service delivery;
- managing risks;
- identifying safeguarding concerns;
- generating alerts;
- improving service matching and coordination;
- supporting decision-making processes.

The personal information used within these systems may include:

- demographic information;
- service information;
- health information;
- assessment information;
- risk information;
- support and wellbeing information.

Darjo maintains human oversight of significant decisions affecting individuals. Automated systems are used to support staff decision-making and governance processes.

Where automated systems contribute to decisions that could reasonably be expected to significantly affect an individual's rights, interests, support arrangements, service access, risk assessments, referrals, prioritisation, or safeguarding actions, Darjo will provide additional information upon request regarding the nature of the system, the information used, and the role of human review.

Disclosure of Personal Information

We may disclose personal information where reasonably necessary to provide services or fulfil legal obligations.

Information may be disclosed to:

- healthcare professionals;
- aged care providers;

- allied health practitioners;
- hospitals;
- support workers;
- service partners;
- referral organisations;
- government agencies;
- regulators;
- auditors;
- legal advisers;
- secure technology providers;
- cloud hosting providers;
- software providers;
- data analytics providers;
- authorised artificial intelligence service providers.

We only disclose information that is reasonably necessary for the purpose concerned.

Where information is disclosed, we take reasonable steps to ensure recipients handle it appropriately and securely.

Overseas Disclosure

Some technology providers engaged by Darjo may store or process information outside Australia.

Where overseas disclosure occurs, Darjo takes reasonable steps to ensure that recipients:

- are subject to privacy obligations comparable to Australian requirements;
- implement appropriate security safeguards;
- only process information for authorised purposes;
- protect the confidentiality of personal information.

If applicable and where practicable, Darjo will make available information regarding the countries in which overseas recipients or cloud providers are located.

Storage and Security of Information

Darjo takes reasonable steps to protect personal information from:

- misuse;
- interference;
- loss;
- unauthorised access;
- modification; and
- disclosure.

Our security controls may include:

- secure cloud platforms;
- encryption technologies;
- access controls;
- authentication mechanisms;
- cybersecurity monitoring;
- audit logging;
- network security protections;
- regular system updates;
- secure document storage;
- staff confidentiality obligations;
- incident response processes.

Only authorised personnel may access personal information where access is necessary to perform their duties.

Data Breaches

Darjo maintains procedures to identify, contain, assess and respond to privacy incidents and data breaches.

Where a data breach is likely to result in serious harm, we will:

- contain the breach;
- assess the impact;
- notify affected individuals where required;
- notify the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner where required;
- implement corrective actions.

Website Analytics and Cookies

Our website may collect limited technical information including:

- IP address;
- browser type;
- operating system information;
- pages viewed;
- referral information;
- date and time of access.

This information assists us to:

- improve website functionality;
- maintain security;
- analyse website usage;
- identify technical issues.

Cookies and similar technologies may be used to improve website performance and user experience.

Research, Quality Improvement and Service Evaluation

Darjo may participate in:

- research activities;
- quality improvement initiatives;
- service evaluations;
- evidence-based practice programs.

Where personal information is used for these purposes, Darjo will comply with applicable privacy, ethical and legislative requirements.

Where practicable, information used for research or analysis will be de-identified.

Any research subject to Human Research Ethics Committee requirements will be managed in accordance with relevant ethical frameworks and approvals.

Access to and Correction of Information

Individuals may request access to personal information held by Darjo.

Individuals may also request correction of information that is:

- inaccurate;
- incomplete;
- out of date;
- misleading.

Requests will be considered in accordance with applicable privacy laws.

Before granting access, we may verify identity to protect privacy and confidentiality.

Your Privacy Rights

Individuals may request:

- access to their information;
- correction of personal information;
- details regarding how information has been used;
- withdrawal of consent where lawful;
- information about disclosures;
- information regarding Darjo's privacy practices.

We aim to respond to privacy requests within a reasonable period.

Data Retention and De-Identification

Records will be retained in accordance with applicable Commonwealth and State recordkeeping requirements, contractual obligations and aged care requirements.

Darjo retains information only for as long as necessary to:

- provide services;
- meet legal obligations;
- satisfy contractual obligations;
- comply with records management requirements;
- manage complaints and disputes.

When information is no longer required, Darjo will take reasonable steps to:

- securely destroy the information; or
- de-identify the information.

Darjo manages information in accordance with Outcome 2.7 Information Management under the Strengthened Aged Care Quality Standards, ensuring information is accurate, secure, accessible to authorised persons, and used to support safe and quality care.

Where information is retained in a de-identified form for research, quality improvement or statistical purposes, reasonable steps will be taken to minimise re-identification risks.

Alignment with Aged Care Quality Standards

Darjo supports privacy practices that align with:

- person-centred care principles;
- dignity and respect requirements;
- clinical governance obligations;
- risk management frameworks;
- quality management systems;
- strengthened aged care quality expectations.

Darjo Community Alliance

Privacy protection forms an important component of safe, quality service delivery.

Client Rights, Dignity and Confidentiality

Darjo recognises that privacy is fundamental to dignity, respect, autonomy and choice.

We aim to ensure:

- individuals are treated respectfully;
- confidentiality is maintained;
- information is accessed only when necessary;
- cultural and personal preferences are respected;
- privacy concerns are addressed promptly;
- clients are informed about how information is handled.

All staff, contractors and representatives must maintain confidentiality regarding personal information.

Complaints and Privacy Concerns

If you have concerns about privacy, confidentiality, data security or the handling of personal information, you may contact Darjo.

We will:

- acknowledge your concern;
- investigate the matter;
- respond within a reasonable timeframe;
- seek to resolve the issue fairly.

If you are not satisfied with our response, you may contact the:
